1980 GRAIN DIRECTORY/BUYER'S GUIDE

This 1980 Grain Directory/Buyer's Guide comprises two sections. The first is the Directory of Grain; the second section is a Buyer's Guide of grain equipment and services. The Grain Directory/Buyer's Guide was first published as a separate directory by Milling & Baking News in 1978.

The Grain Directory provides a comprehensive listing of companies in grain, including headquarters and plant personnel, terminal, sub-terminal, river and port elevator locations and capacities, receiving and loading methods, rail carriers and elevator services. An alphabetical listing of companies begins on Page 123.

The Buyer's Guide includes a complete listing of products and services for grain and an alphabetical listing of companies manufacturing these products. Suggestions on how to use the Buyer's Guide appear on Page 71.

U.S. Grain Elevators (Terminal)

A terminal elevator receives most of its grain from other elevators by rail, truck or barge, loads out grain by rail, truck, barge or Lakes vessel, and has official weights and grades.

*Denotes that the elevator is part of a Multiple Elevator Company. (See listing beginning on Page 7 for U.S. Companies.) See railroad abbreviations on Page 120.

Aeroglide Builds These 3 Driers!

The majority of drier/cooler manufacturers in this country build only one type of drier. A handful may build two types. Aeroglide builds three types of process driers/coolers... Rotary ... Tower... Conveyor.

Aeroglide Doesn't Have To Play Favorites!

Building three types of driers/coolers means that Aeroglide's specialists can concentrate on your particular needs rather than on one particular type of hardware.

First, Aeroglide makes a thorough investigation of the drying requirements of your product. Then, Aeroglide adapts the correct type of drier to your product rather than trying to adapt your product to a fixed drier configuration. For information call 919/851-2000; Telex 579421; or write Aeroglide, Raleigh, NC 27611.

Every Material Has Certain Chemical and Physical Characteristics That Produce Peculiar Drying Characteristics...

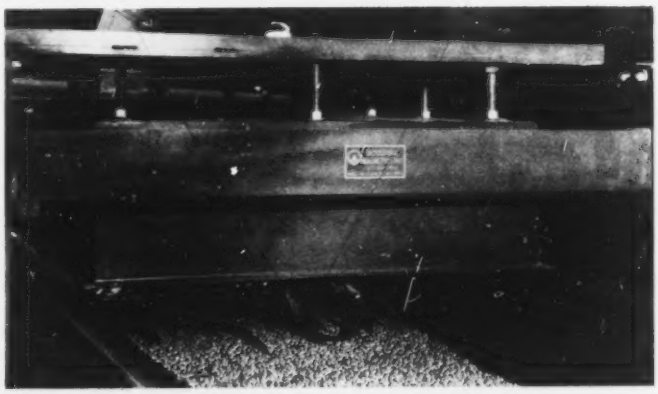
Stop tramp metal magnetically; protect equipment and product.

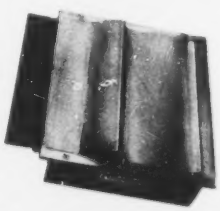
Suspended Permanent Magnet Kit (SPMK)



Control ferrous tramp metal in receiving areas and belt applications. Reduce chances of serious equipment damage or product quality problems. SPMK protection is easy to install, adjust and clean. All bolts and support frame parts are included so no welding or fabrication is needed. SPMK is safe, reliable and economical, because it uses no electricity or hazardous coolants.

Spout Magnets

Use these magnets in chute applications to protect machinery, facilities and product purity. The primary diverter bar stops wash-off of ferrous contaminants; the secondary diverter reduces product damage on the edge of the chute opening. This is a permanent magnet with a removable 11-gauge stainless steel diverter plate that's easy to clean and replace.



Write for your free brochure, "Permanent Magnets for Feed Grain and Milling." For best use of these and other magnets, ask an IMI sales engineer.

Trends from the '80 Grain Directory

The 1980 Grain Directory lists 489 U.S. grain elevators, with aggregate storage capacity of 1,585,278,350 bushels. The totals include 148 sub-terminal elevators with total capacity of 253,510,682 bus, 229 terminal elevators with capacity of 924,790,166 bus, 41 river elevators with capacity of 56,819,700 bus, and 71 port elevators with capacity of 350,157,802 bus. (See tables on this page.) A definition of each category appears on the first page of each elevator section. The 489 elevators in this Directory represent 3.2% of the total number of off-farm grain storage facilities and 22% of aggregate storage capacity as estimated by the Department of Agriculture on Jan. 1, 1980. The U.S.D.A. count of 15,169 off-farm grain storage facilities includes country elevators, storage facilities at grain processing plants such as flour mills, and other miscellaneous grain storages which are not listed in the Grain Directory/Buyer's Guide.

The statistical tables and maps on the following pages are based on data compiled from the 1980 Grain Directory/Buyer's Guide as well as from Department of Agriculture statistics.
